Ernest hemingway house virtual tour

Stop at the most significant address in Key West, Florida, and wander through the illustrious home and lush gardens of the Nobel Prize author, Ernest Hemingway. Take a guided tour of the Spanish Colonial house that Hemingway resided in during the 1930's, ornately decorated with furniture from Spain from the 17th and 18th-centuries. Get an inside peek of the life he led in the Keys for over ten years writing and enjoying the tiny island. Now a National Historic Landmark, this unique property is also home to 40-50 cats, all descendants of Hemingway's cat, Snow White. After the tour, make your way to the museum and bookstore for Hemingway keepsakes, books, and novelty items on sale. Adults: $14.00, Children (6 - 12): $6, Children (5 and under): Free. Cash Only. Open daily from 9 am to 5pm, rain or shine. Photo Courtesy: Owen Humphreys/GettyImages For many folks, glimpsing the Northern Lights is a top-tier bucket list dream — and for good reason. Even in pictures, the sight is simply mesmerizing. On the other hand, photographs are a safe bet: we’ve all heard the tales of folks traveling to faraway places only to end up disappointed because they didn’t plan accordingly. Here, we’re giving you a chance to see the Northern Lights virtually, but we’re also delving into the best livestreams, tours, and must-book accommodations to fulfill all of your Aurora Borealis-viewing dreams. Start daydreaming now so that, one day soon, you’ll be able to turn that wanderlust into an unforgettable trip to see the Northern Lights.What Are the Northern Lights?Before you go on your virtual or real-life visit, it’s always good to brush up on your knowledge, especially when that knowledge pertains to an astrological phenomenon. So, what exactly happens during a Northern Lights show? Photo Courtesy: Lev Fedoseyev/GettyImages Known as Aurora Borealis, the Northern Lights occur when sun particles collide with the Earth’s magnetic field. The top and bottom of the field are curved, touching the Earth at its poles since the magnetic field is weaker in those places. Once the collision occurs, the particles make the unique light spectacle we known as the Northern Lights. The lights are typically yellow and green — the color is produced by oxygen molecules, which can be found 60 miles above Earth’s surface. However, there are many other (slightly rarer) colors associated with the Aurora Borealis. For example, oxygen located 200 miles above Earth’s surface produces red auroras, while nitrogen produces blue or purple auroras.These Are the Ideal Conditions for the Northern LightsMost often, the lights are visible from early August to late April. But, the truth is, you’ll need to strategically plan your visit to get the most out of this phenomenon. If you’re not a fan of long, cold nights, this won’t work in your favor since the best time to take a trip is some time between November and March. However, these months also tend to have the most snow, which could make your trip slightly unpredictable. Photo Courtesy: Lev Fedoseyev/GettyImages To see the best of the Aurora Borealis you’ll need: A clear, cloudless night A good location, away from cities and light pollution Warm clothes Patience — after all, you may need to wait for quite a while! As we all know, weather can be very unpredictable. With this in mind, it’s a good idea to follow the Aurora Borealis forecast in order to truly determine whether or not your visit will reward you with a clear sight of the Northern Lights.Captivating Places to Watch Aurora Borealis FromIf virtual isn’t your thing and you still prefer to see the lights live, there are a couple of places that will give you the best possible views of the Northern Lights. Known as the “Aurora Zone,” these places include Finland, Sweden, Norway, Iceland, Greenland, and Canada. Each country has a couple of places that will give you a clear view of the lights — well, so long as the conditions are working in your favor, of course. Photo Courtesy: Dominic Chiu/GettyImages No matter where you try, you should always get as far away from nearby cities; even the slightest pollution can impact visibility. If you feel uncomfortable embarking on a Northern Lights trek on your own, we recommend taking a tour. After all, sometimes that professional guide can really give you a leg up in securing the best available view. Finland: In Finland, the Northern Lights are visible 200 days a year. In fact, it’s considered one of the best locations to get a magical view. If you want the best spot possible, go north and visit the Utsjoki village. One of the best accommodations to enjoy a private view of the lights is the charming Aurora River House, Sweden: September is an ideal time for watching the Northern Lights in Sweden. For the best view, you should head far north to the town of Kiruna. If you’re looking to enjoy the Aurora Borealis from your doorstep (and cuddle with some huskies while doing so), book your stay at Husky Dreams. Norway: From September to April, Norway is a fabulous spot to see the Northern Lights. Without a doubt, the most popular location is Tromsø, which boasts many wonderful accommodations that allow you to watch the show from a fireside window. Iceland: Iceland is a popular destination for Aurora Borealis enthusiasts. Reykjavik is a perfect location; however, as it’s a city, you may find that taking a Northern Lights tour with a professional will allow you to get the best possible view. Greenland: With 300 clear nights per year, Greenland’s Kangerlussuaq is one of the most popular Aurora Borealis destinations. Because you can’t stay at Kangerlussuaq, a guided tour is best. Canada: Last but not least, is Canada, which also gives you a chance to see the lights in action. Yellowknife is reportedly one of the best places in the world to witness the Northern Lights in person. In fact, you can find accommodations that allow you to enjoy the view right from your balcony.Take a Virtual Vacation InsteadSo, what if you really want to see the Northern Lights in the summer? Well, thanks to some innovative technology, you can! We recommend trying a 360 virtual tour or watching one of many high-definition Aurora Borealis videos, all of which will leave a lasting impression. Looking for something a little more spur of the moment? You can also enjoy livestreams of the Northern Lights from many locations described above. Not only is this a fun way to enjoy the spectacle from home, but livestreams are a great way to learn more about planning an in-person trip. Thanks to the power of YouTube’s livestreams, you can see the Aurora Borealis from several different perspectives and easily travel from one place to another, all from the comfort of your sofa. MORE FROM ASK.COM Stop #12 on our Virtual Road Trip is the Ernest Hemingway Home and Museum in Key West, Florida! Ernest and Pauline Hemingway lived in the home with their two sons, Patrick and Gregory, for almost 10 years. The limestone house was originally built between 1859 – 1861 for Asa and Anna Tift. By 1931 when the Hemingway’s discovered it, the home was vacant, boarded up, and in need of repair. They spent a significant amount of time and money rebuilding, and improving the house and grounds. Today, guided tours of the Hemingway Home are provided by a knowledgeable team of docents. The tours cover a wide range of topics, from the construction of the home and stories about the family to descriptions of the original furniture, art, and personal items. Once you leave the main building, the tour continues outside and includes stops at the first swimming pool in Key West and the loft studio used by Hemingway to write many of his classics. The famous six-toe cats have free roam of the property, so expect to see many of the descendants of “Papa” Hemingway’s beloved feline friends. Tour Tip: The Hemingway Home is one of the most popular attractions in Key West. Purchase your tickets in advance, as the tour groups are kept small to allow everyone to enjoy the house without being cramped in the smallish rooms. Have your camera ready to take pictures of the famous cats and don’t forget to snap a quick photo of the Nobel Prize-winning author’s studio. Following the Connection While living in Key West, Hemingway spent summers in Idaho and Wyoming. In 1939 he was invited by the owner of the recently completed Sun Valley Resort to celebrate and promote the grand opening of the first destination ski resort in the United States. In the Fall of 1939, Hemingway completed For Whom the Bell Tolls while staying in Suite 206 of the Sun Valley Lodge. Next Stop: The Sun Valley Resort, Sun Valley, Idaho Detour: Hemingway was in Europe during both World War I and World War II. In 1917 (WWI) Hemingway answered a recruitment ad by the Red Cross and was dispatched as an ambulance driver to Italy. He was also in Europe in 1944-1945 (WWII), working as a journalist and was present during the Invasion of Normandy, Battle of the Bulge, and the Liberation of Paris. The National WWI Museum and Memorial in Kansas City, Missouri, and The National WWII Museum in New Orleans, Louisiana, are the most comprehensive military museums in the United States associated with the World Wars. Plan Your Trip Key West is one of the most popular destinations in the United States. The peak tourism season begins in late December and continues through April. Our advice it to plan your trip well in advance for the best reservations and deals. Also consider late March through May when the crowds have thinned a little and the temperatures are still pleasant. Here are some recommendations from the travel desk at Check-it-Off Travel to consider while planning a trip to the museum.
